Dave,

For a right wing conservative you can I guess I still can't understand why an intelligent young man as yourself likes the draft well I hope it never comes up. I'm really happy that we got to be friends you and any nastiness (I won't name it) is all well forgotten. It's been weird not having you around school even if I don't have to make tactless excuses anymore! Don't go astray at N. D. and let's please try to keep in touch if you ever come out in California, stop in and see me and then stop on to see P. and Patty cuz that's where hell be when is basically the election! Let's not bother making excuses for the old geezer, I'm not listening - LOL Lololol your mom must think I'm weird as hell I don't think I'd be writing a book but it's hard to write now. Really feel about everything but I'll say it's been a super year and I'm glad I met a super guy like you. Good luck always - Jennifer

REPAIRING a lawn mower, traditionally a man's job, is an easy task for Peggy Habel in Mechanics class.

'BREAKING AWAY'

We knew we could do it. Starting out another year fresh, with new students and new ideas, things began to roll. Classes were no longer separated from each other in cheering but were united as one. And the football team became victorious. Something was always just around the corner—whether it was front row seats at the Styx concert, or getting a picture in on time for photography class. Disco lost a lot of its zip, and rock started rolling once again.

LYNN TEPE introduces Sue Wills to a new friend Talla the horse.

These attitudes were reflected in the controversy of “Disco or Rock” in the cafeteria jukebox. As always, though, students worked together for a fair compromise. Another “compromise” was the new parking lot security guard Bob Sheppard. Even with an authoritative position, he remained our friend. All 1300 of us worked together. We knew how we wanted our school, and we didn’t stop until we liked it. That’s why we’re Riley.

STUDENT LIFE

Students' lives are never dull or boring but always full of zip. It doesn't matter if we're raising money at a car wash or practicing lines for a play; there is always something going on. Seniors tease sophomores, people get involved in activities or go to a horror movie with a favorite person. Girls and guys do jobs ranging from working in a clothing store to feeding the cows. Winter was again another inevitable part of student life as we prayed for enough snow to cause the cancellation of school. Spring ushered in the prom, a memorable time for all. Graduation—a happy moment for some—a sad moment for others—but for all—it was a moment of proving that That's Why We're Riley.

rington to help you in the library,
it's easy to find a book.

Summer: laughter, happiness, romance

Just because we took time out of our busy days to ride a tricycle or take an occasional turn on a swing doesn't mean we're children. Although we flocked to see The Muppet Movie in droves, we grew up too. We got driver's licenses and applied to colleges. We held down jobs and did homework. We helped Mr. Robert Taylor campaign for re-election as fifth district councilman, and worked at the polls on election day, voted in the mayoral election, and also voted for Homecoming queens. We took interest in things on a large scale like the Olympics, the energy crisis and the gas shortage. On a local scale we watched our new school superintendent coping with problems like desegregation of schools and graduation requirements. We took interest in fashions as we walked the halls in spiked heels, french jeans, and business-like suits. We got together at dances and parties. The girls got their turn to ask boys out at the Sadie Hawkins dance. We went to concerts, supported rock and roll, and put down disco. We had spirit. We got involved. That's why we're special. That's why we're Riley.

Togetherness . . . That's why we're Riley

New and old friends talked excitedly of summer vacations and caught up on summer activities before embarking on a new school year of fun. Underclassmen exchanged school pictures and laughed over them, elections were held for class officers, and the seven elected Homecoming Queens eagerly awaited their special night. A barrage of sports activities were underway: football, cross country, volleyball, and tennis. The newly formed soccer club struggled for recognition and acquired a record of many victories and few defeats. Foreign exchange students blended into Riley life, participating in various clubs and singing the school song at the pep assemblies. Rileyites cheered as Kansas performed at the ACC in the early fall. A theatrically-inclined group began work on the fall drama production, "By Jupiter." It seemed that Rileyites were never idle for a moment. The hustle and bustle of the students was very much alive.

A little over two centuries ago, a small exploratory expedition headed by a Frenchman named LaSalle canoed up a small river in the wilderness of frontier America. He camped in a spot which he would later name South Bend. If LaSalle could canoe up that river again, he would hardly recognize the spot.

"Welcome to South Bend, the progressive city." That welcome billboard is becoming truer every year as redevelopers rebuild and rediscover the city. This year proved to be one of transition for our community, as urban development and social reform became prominent. The "big hole" was filled as construction for the Marriott Hotel complex finally began. As always, the University of Notre Dame contributed its share of educational and cultural growth to the area throughout the year. The new and the old worked together to form a stronger South Bend.

Feferman discovers holography

"It has been predicted that within the next ten years there will be holographic television.

—Ben Feferman

Remember the animated chess game in the movie Star Wars. Well, the playing pieces were not cartoons, as many people believe, but they were holograms. Holograms are three-dimensional pictures that can be made by laser beams. They are extremely rare and hard to obtain. But, Ben Feferman, a Riley sophomore, collects holograms for a hobby. He has even attempted to develop his own holograms.

Ben first became interested in holograms while on vacation in San Francisco. "I saw a lady selling holograms on the street," he said, "and I began asking her about them." Since then he has made several trips to San Francisco and Oakland, Calif. to purchase holograms. "It's not that holograms are exclusively found in California" said Ben, "but most fads start out on the West Coast."

Holograms can be produced in only three colors: red, blue, and green. This is because lasers mainly come in those colors and a hologram will be the same color of the laser used. A hologram can be any size and it can also be made to move. If a glass Hologram is broken, it is not ruined. Every piece of a shattered hologram will project a smaller image of the original. In 1979, Ben won the Jackson Middle School Science Fair award by placing first in senior division physics. That year he attempted to produce his own holograms, with the help of a teacher.

CITY COUNCILMAN Bob Taylor has many supporters in his campaign for re-election.

THE NAUTILUS SHELL (pictured at left) is one of the holograms in Ben Feferman's collection. At a close look, it is possible to distinguish the outer perimeter of the shell. This hologram, created by lasers, is a three-dimensional image developed on a plate of glass; however, it is impossible to reproduce the three dimensions of the shell when photographed.

NEARLY CROWDED out of the living room by her 70 stuffed animals is Jackie Walorski.

FUZZY friendships fabricate 'funship'

Almost everyone has a stuffed animal that they have kept as a remnant of their childhood . . . A teddy bear or some other appealing, furry creature has long been a comfort to children everywhere. But junior Jackie Walorski has a little more company than usual. She is an avid collector of stuffed animals and has over 70 of them in her room. Her hobby dates back to the day she was born, with the gift of a small, black poodle (which now looks like a limp, black sock). Jackie's favorites are Bogart the Bassett and two large bears, George and Bear, but she is very attached to all animals.

She admits her room is a little crowded, but she points out, "I'll never have to worry about being lonely!"

Education starts in the home, progresses in school, and finally culminates in a career, and then again in the home. Some students have decided to combine their steps, however, by acquiring part-time jobs after school. Though these jobs didn't always set a person's career, they helped develop responsibility and working experience later in life.

Some students such as Larry Karaszewski, pursue through their part-time jobs their chosen career. Larry works at WNDU and hopes to go into communications. For others such as Dan Papp, who works at Farrell's, the job isn't anything permanent but just a stepping stone to future careers. Besides the obvious monetary benefits, students see their jobs as a learning experience comparable to school.

Seven queens from the feeder schools were crowned at the second consecutive Homecoming since 1969. They were driven around Jackson field in convertibles and accompanied by their feeder school principals. Each RHS graduate who "came home" to the game was given a yellow mum by staff members of the Hoosier Poet and Riley Review. The football team defeated city rival, Adams, 7-0, and after the victory students attended a dance in Riley's Woodard Memorial Gym. A band called "Parkovash" provided the music.

SENIOR CAPTAINS Jean Bytner and Anita Mauro go over the rules with the referees before the game.

The senior girls whipped the juniors, 47-27, in the fourth annual Powderpuff Game. Head coach Dan Basker's senior offense was led by Mary Birmingham and Anita Mauro with three touchdowns each. Kim Woods also made a touchdown and Mauro, Debbie Wagner, and Amy Han were responsible for the extra points.

Scorers for the juniors were Laura Gonderman (two touchdowns) and Nita Zumbrun (a touchdown and two extra points). Sue Hosinski also scored a touchdown. The juniors' head coach was Buzz Aitchison.

The male cheerleaders entertained the fans as they displayed their beauty and charm. In the sophomore girls' tug-of-war at half-time the A-M's were victorious in the best of two out of three tries.

Stick A Bola In The Ayatollah

In Iran the tension grew as 50 American hostages were held captive by Ayatollah Khomeini and his followers. The American government and citizens showed their concern for the hostages by holding rallies, sending the hostages Christmas cards, the Ayatollah dart board and a U.N. proposal for an economic sanction on Iran. Carter, Reagan, Brown, Kennedy and other candidates were hot in the race for the presidency. The Vietnam War ended years ago, but still the world was plagued by the refugees trying to find a new home. The United States showed its kindness and gave a home to thousands of these refugees. The gas prices hit a record high, thanks to the price hikes by the OPEC nations. The Pope had a very successful visit to the U.S. He left the people of the country, regardless of religion, with a vision of hope and high spirits.

Many movies were big during the year. Science fiction had a comeback with "Star Trek." Hollywood's newly discovered beauty, Bo Derek, starred in the comedy flick "10." The Muppets had their film debut in "The Muppet Movie" and Bette Midler portrayed Janice Joplin in "The Rose."

In the sports scene there was competition for the number-one title between Bjorn Borg and 21-year-old John McEnroe. Sixteen-year-old Tracy Austin also established herself in the women's tennis circuit.

Winter, Olympic games, and many fun times

Skiing trips, snowball fights, and sledding with your friends are all a part of our winter wonderland. But whoever thought that after the blizzard of 1978 we would have little if any snow this year for Christmas. For some people Christmas didn't seem much like Christmas because of the lack of snow.

The 1980's rolled in, bringing the hockey season and fun times at Erskine golf course with bonfires and sledding. After basketball games, people passing by Shakey's could usually see students in the midst of a snowball fight. Even though we received quite a bit of snow in a short time, it wasn't enough to cancel school and cancel out finals. Many students wished that it would snow as it did a couple of years ago; but, as we all know, our wish never came true.

Although there was a lot of snow on the ground, it was relatively mild compared to the past years. Every morning students would get up out of a warm bed, get dressed, and go outside to shovel the driveway, and start the car so it could warm up before they started the journey to school.

This winter brought us the 13th Annual Olympics. Eric Heiden, the record-breaking speed skater, won five gold medals while the hockey team took the gold. For the winter sports fans and athletes, winter is an enjoyable and challenging time.

UP

As the ERA died in State legislatures all over the country, equal rights found its way into the Century Center Stage when the Riley Thespians presented the unusual battle of the sexes, "By Jupiter." This musical fantasy, with music by Rodgers and Hart, is set in the mythical land of the Amazons, where the reigning monarch is Queen Hippolyta, played by Gayle Reznik. An Army headed by Homer, (Marty Lightner), Hercules (Matt Wilson), and Theseus (Jim Beck), land on their shores to capture the Amazons' most prized possession, the Girdle of Diana. Everything is complicated further as Theseus falls in love with the Queen's sister Antiope, played by Laura Nelson. The play then revolves around this love story and the rather unique one between Hippolyta and her sometimes feminine, always sex-hungry husband Sapiens, (Arturo Garcia). Everything ended happily with Hercules getting the girdle, Theseus getting Antiope, and Sapiens getting the crown as well as equality for men in Amazonia.

AS THE MUSICAL nears its climax, the villain ties the heroine to the tracks.

GASLIGHT GIRL

The handsome upstanding hero; the beautiful, innocent heroine; the elderly, protective widow; the treacherous dastardly villain and his bumbling, besotted sidekick. If you think these descriptions sound like characters from a Snidely Whiplash and Penelope Pitstop cartoon, you're almost right. These phrases describe the leading roles in Riley's spring production of "Gaslight Girl," presented March 13, 14, and 15 in the Bendix Theater at Century Center. John H.B. Kauss was the director and Nancy Stroup the choreographer.

This musical melodrama set in the historic period of the gay nineties was stock full of entertaining antics including a barbershop quartet, a wild and wacky chase scene, and of course where would a melodrama be without the heroine being tied to railroad tracks. With a large crop of sophomores and juniors, the play's cast contains only five seniors.

With over eight scene changes and different sets, this play represented an enormous technical achievement. The effort involved was well worth it to put on another quality production.

THE NEWSBOY (John Hadrick) is about to be strangled by Cadbury (John Henderson).

CAST MEMBERS of "Gaslight Girl" practice the opening number.

LAURA NELSON plays the pure and lovely heroine, Mary Goodhue.

ACTIVITIES

The number of different activities offered at a school are an indication of its spirit and strength and Riley's repertory is not unimpressive. Activities can range from the marching band and the speech and debate team, to the throwing of a pie in the face of a teacher at an NHS dance. By participating, students enjoy themselves and entertain others. Clubs are formed to produce enthusiasm and promote social interests. By showing enthusiasm in an extra-curricular activity, a student learns the idea of camaraderie.

Music makes the world go round

Qualified directors, talented students, and everyday practice —That's what it takes to produce sounds of music which everyone enjoys.

Directed by Mr. Jay Miller, the orchestra had a successful year, providing many triumphant tours to feeder schools. First places in the regional contest were won by many individuals along with the full orchestra. The orchestra also received an invitation to state competition but declined the offer.

Glee Club and Choraliers are directed by Mr. Dan Miller. Vocal music was heard in the halls every morning beginning on the first day of school.

While it was only September and students were still trying to get back in the swing of things, the Glee Club was already practicing for the Christmas program.

The Choraliers were chosen from tryouts at the beginning of the year. These students also practiced every day and performed for many community groups.

Honor societies induct new members

Induction into the Riley Chapter of National Honor Society means not only a B average, but a lot more. You also have to stand out in three other areas: Service—carrying happiness, comfort, and peace to many. Scholarship—he who has wisdom and understanding and retains them is blessed. Character—it distinguishes one man from another. It gives him individuality and personality. When character is good, it must arise from high ideals, clean living, and clean thinking. Character is above reputation and is measured not only by words and deeds but even more by silent thoughts and unspoken motives.

NHS inductions were on Jan. 10. Advisor Frances Smith and Dr. Sweeney spoke at the ceremony. President George Kolettis presented the 11 seniors and 54 juniors their NHS pins.

For the first time the NHS sponsored a dance. It was a big success, giving students the chance to throw pies in teachers' faces.

"What I would do without my mouth," "Selling myself as an advertisement," and "Should wrestling be co-ed?" were just a few of the speeches made at the Quill and Scroll induction.

Quill and Scroll is an Honorary Society which consists of doing outstanding work in publications, ranking in the upper third of the class as a junior or senior to be eligible for membership.

The induction, as always, took place at Mrs. Claus' home. The editors lit a candle as they recited what a good journalist should be.

The new members each lit a candle, received a pin or charm and said the Quill and Scroll pledge.

If students prefer to talk with people nearer their own ages why not form a group of volunteer students, teach them how to be good listeners, have them encourage students to talk to their counselors, and have them make students aware of the services available to them?

Such a group was formed from the guidance department's Student Advisory Board—a group of 26 seniors. This procedure has continued the past three years. The group took the acronym STP for Students Thinking Positively and have become known as Cadet Counselors. Counselor Mrs. Anita Landry is the sponsor of the program. Cadets were assigned to the guidance office each hour of the day. They started working with sophomores—especially those with attendance problems. Once a week Cadets met with Mrs. Landry to receive instructions. A room in the counseling suite has been designated as "The Special Place." Interested students spoke up and helped form the "Rileyettes." This year for the first time, a pom-pon group was chosen to represent the school at basketball games. Mrs. Bagwell sponsored the idea because she had once been a pom-pon girl at Mishawaka and she was impressed by the number of students who were interested in a pom-pon club.

The new "Rileyettes" are sophomores Rosetta Boykin, Kathy Kresca, Tammy Martin, Judy Montgomery, Michele Patton, Dana Stealy; juniors Kim Eslinger, Sherri Evans, Connie Frison, Terri Fritsch, Liz Isbell, Tammi Lamont, Juanita Martinez, Bientia Miller, Mary Smigielski, and senior Kathy Stewart. Spirit aroused!

Cheerleading required almost total involvement and endless energy. They work on perfection in their mounts, jumps, and chants.

The teams were not only backed by the cheerleaders during a game: they also received many "goodies" in the locker room to show them that the school cared.

Wearing the traditional Wildcat uniform was Lori Wertz. Lori helped to lead the student body by having them standing up and urging them to yell the familiar chant, "Down by the River." To Lori, being the school's mascot was "P-U-R—R-F-E-C-T. Being the Wildcat has meant so much to me, I'll never forget it." When the football and basketball seasons have ended, the cheerleaders have put in a lot of hard work. To the girls involved, it was all worth it because underclassmen are anxious for tryouts, to begin their work all over again. Clamoring for school spirit, the cheerleaders led the student body with the chant, "Let's get rowdie" and the Cats did!

-O-W-D-I-E, . . . that's the way we spell spirit at Riley. The bounds and pep of the cheerleaders have become as much a part of our school as sophomore orientation and senior pride. The girls that represent the school teams are not only high-spirited but also have good sportmanship. Over the summer the cheerleaders opened a cheerleading clinic for the young girls from the feeder schools so that they could learn to be good cheerleaders. It cost $3.50 for a week and the money earned went towards new blouses and coats.

ROBIN DUNN keeps her hands and spirit warm at the homecoming game.

It starts at 6:30 at Golden Bear . . .

Almost every Saturday during the winter, a small group of students stagger into the Golden Bear on Ireland Road. The time? About 6:30 a.m. No, this is not a group of party-goers getting an early breakfast; it's the Riley Speech and Debate team. It is here that their busy day begins.

While the sun rises, the team will travel to one of many area high schools. Upon arrival, they break up and go to their individual events. The team is diversified: Norman Jacobi, Chuck Hecker and Talia Sternberg specialize in discussion—an event concerned with this year's debate topic. Amy Han is an extemporaneous speaker, Kim DeRose enters the poetry reading division, Beth Rowe created her own speech in Original Oratory, Justine Vakkur reads someone else's speech in Oratorical Interpretation. Mike Shane and Gilbert Jones are in Impromptu.

Speech is usually accompanied by debate, a formal method of weighing the pro's and con's of the National Debate Proposal. Debate involved evidence-getting, constructive and rebuttal speeches, and cross-examination. At this year's Elkhart Central Speech Meet, Riley placed 5th out of 18 schools, with only seven students participating.

Music is created everywhere

"Band has been hard work, but it has given me some great times that I'll always remember," says Senior band member Bev Beyler.

To many, band seems easy but to members, it takes a great deal of time and effort. The marching band begins practice three weeks before the beginning of school. When school begins, so do the 7 a.m. practices. The time and work do pay off when the applause is heard after the carefully planned half-time show is performed.

The symphonic band and marching band are the same. After half-time marching shows are over for the season, the members change uniforms and presto, the Symphonic band directed by Thomas DeShone are ready to perform for the community.

SPIRIT WEEK

INVADES HALLS

Spirit Week, March 3-8, involved more people and became a bigger event than ever. The seniors decorated the second floor with the theme Monopoly; the juniors decorated the third floor to look like the Olympic games; and the sophomores decorated the first floor into a safari.

Twenty-one ugly couples walked the halls Feb. 24-29 collecting money from other students for the prom. The couples surpassed their goal of $600. In 1978 there were 5 ugly couples and in 1979 there were 12.

The traditional assembly was held on the day of the first sectional basketball game against Adams. The classes presented skits and the boys' swim team presented to the school their trophy for being state runnerup. a $600 check from the powderpuff football was presented to the athletic department, and the winners of the skit, hall decorations, and ugly couples contest were announced.

Two new traditions were started. Class meetings were held to involve all the students in the preparations for Spirit Week. In other years, meetings were held for homeroom officers only. March 4 was Blue and Gold Day. Athletes wore their letter sweaters and the other students wore something blue and gold.

Students learning about society

Junior Achievement is a nation-wide program designed to teach high school students about the business world on a small scale. Approximately one hundred Riley students participated in Junior Achievement. Being involved means having an area business sponsor your company, then producing a product, and selling it. Rent must be paid for used space, and production costs are figured. The original capital must be paid back to the company. Junior Achievement trade fairs are sponsored at local shopping centers two times a year. These fairs give members a chance to sell their products and also enable them to learn how to deal with people.

Another form of Junior Achievement is Beyond Our Control. Beyond Our Control helps talented students develop acting and producing skills. The actors, cameramen, and directors are all students. They meet every Saturday morning arranging sets, visiting the costume department, and filming shows at WNDU.

A.V. and librarian aides serve the school

Two groups of people who often go unnoticed are the librarian and audio-visual aides. The responsibilities accepted by the library staff are many and varied. They and their student helpers interact constantly with the student body and faculty to assure the smooth flow of needed materials. The job of cataloging and organizing the myriad educational literature, magazines, and films was an invaluable service to all the pupils and faculty.

The audio-visual aides prepare and show films to all classes for special purposes. They willingly give up their viewing rooms whenever a club or organization needs one of them for meetings.

These two groups, the librarians and the audio-visual aides, dedicate themselves to a better functioning school and the service of faculty and student body.

The Black Culture Society, a group of students concerned with promoting civil rights and black history, meet every Wednesday after school. The group, sponsored by Mrs. Wilma Harris, decorates the second floor bulletin board along with preparing displays and morning announcements recalling famous black persons in U.S. history. During the month of February the group celebrated Black History and tried to get the whole school involved in their activities. The Black Culture Society includes the following, Patti

Ewing, president; Michelle Lottie, secretary; Ronnie King, Co-social Chairperson; Karen Marsh, Co-social Chairperson; Diane Magee, Vice-president; Tracy Franklin, treasurer; Veronica Hankerson, Jackie Sanders, Michele Patton, and Gwen Gates.

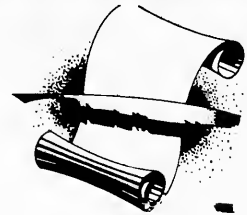

'Paw Prints' breaks ground

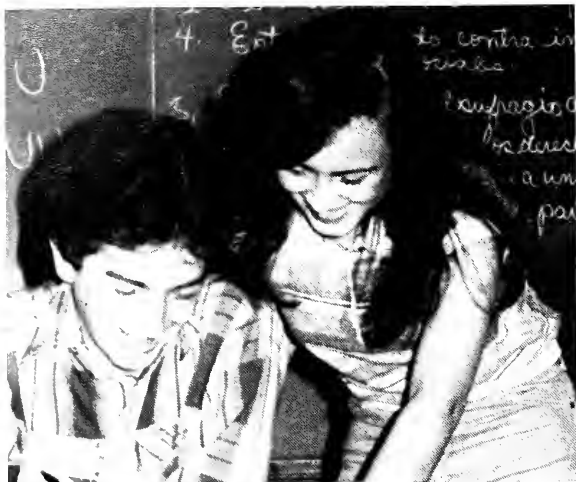

Paw Prints is a creative writing magazine for students, staff, and faculty members who wish to use their writing and art ability in an imaginative way and have it publicized. The idea to start this magazine was developed by the co-editors of the magazine, seniors Debby Applegate, and Frances Lovdahl. Mr. Mike Downey liked the idea and thought it would be a good way to help get rid of some of the apathy. Mr. Downey talked to art teacher Todd Hoover about getting art students interested in contributing to the magazine. He also talked to industrial arts teacher Mr. Homer Morris about the prices and printing of the magazine. Paw Prints consist of poems, short stories, music, photographs, and drawings. The first issue was dedicated to the memory of the Hoosier Poet, James Whitcomb Riley. Here is a poem from the magazine written by Janneane M. Smith:

Style

I know my jeans are tight as sin-
My butt is flat as tile.
My blouse can barely hold me in
But yes, Ma, this is style.
My hosiery seams are crooked;
The perm will last a minute.
My slit skirt split a bit too high,
But yes, Ma, this is style.
My jogging shorts are way too short
My cords attract the lint
And all the colors ran together
On my Dior print.
I'll buy that dress for sixty bucks
And give the clerk a smile
I'll only wear the dumb thing twice,
But yes, Ma, this is style.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE students Juan Narvaez and Hans Hilden spend lunch together comparing cultures.

LISA RITTMEIR and her host sister, Ruth Kwiecinski, reminisce about days in Germany.

Living in new places: Learning new cultures

Each year a few high school students go abroad as a part of the Youth For Understanding program. Some spend only the summer months in a foreign country, while others stay the entire school year. They learn new customs and traditions and develop a love for the people they meet and the places they go.

Attending Riley as a part of the YFU program are Elizabeth Galarza from Ecuador, Hans Hilden from Germany, and Juan Narvaez from Mexico. Ruth Kwiecinski, a senior, spent her junior year abroad in Germany. Ruth's German sister, Lisa Rittmeir, came to America for a year, not joining the YFU program.

While in America, Hans stayed with the Roses. His American brother was junior Pat Rose. Hans liked the school and the students very much. One complaint about the school day was that the passing periods were too short. The town in which Hans lives is very different from South Bend. It has a population of 55,000 and is over 1,000 years old. Hans enjoys many hobbies in America as well as in Germany. They include swimming, singing, golfing and reading. When asked how he felt about being a YFU student, Hans replied "I'm pretty happy that I got elected for this. I enjoy being here learning in a different surrounding."

Elizabeth Galarza's American family was the Rices. Her American sister attended Marian High School. Elizabeth found the people in South Bend friendly but had a little trouble relating in English. In Ecuador a lot of students drive to school; gasoline is only 27¢ a gallon. There is no drinking age in Ecuador, but unlike in America you have to be 21 to be considered an adult. One of the big differences between South Bend and her hometown that Elizabeth noticed was "In Ecuador, even though it is smaller than South Bend, there are always many people out on the streets walking around, while here I hardly see any."

Juan Narvaez stayed with the Vakkur family while in America. His American brother was Mark Vakkur. The one thing that Juan liked the most about Riley was that everyone is free to "do whatever you want." The town where Juan comes from is also quite different from South Bend, it has a population of 3 million. When Juan finds himself with spare time he takes part in hunting, horseback riding, woodcarving and basketball.

Lisa Rittmeir's American family was the Kwiecinskis. Her sister was Ruth Kwiecinski. Lisa felt that Riley has more activities, but her old school was more on a college level. The driving age in Germany is eighteen and because of this not many high school students drive to school. Lisa enjoys writing, art and reading in her spare time. To Lisa, South Bend has "too much industry."

On weekends, all three of the students agreed there are discos, movies, and parties. In Germany the drinking age is 16 and there are bars that the kids go to.

When Ruth Kwiecinski arrived in Germany she spent her first week with a family in Hamburg. Then for the next month she had a language course in Kiel, after which she went to live with the Rittmeiers. While in Germany Ruth visited Austria, Belgium, Holland, England and East Germany. Ruth thought that the school days were too long and the classes were harder. When she first started school there was a difficulty in learning because of a language barrier. There is no actual dating in the part of Germany where Ruth visited, groups go places together instead of couples. "Where I lived if you had a boyfriend you were considered pretty serious with him." Ruth's feelings about her trip were "It isn't the country that impressed me the most but the experience."

SPORTS

Sports are the most competitive part of high school. Each athlete does his best to excel in a particular area, always with the championship or state title as the ultimate goal. Though only one may gain that title, there are usually many who deserve it. Sportsmanship is an important lesson to be learned from competition, and at Riley, athletes have learned to exult in their victories and accept their defeats. The teams have a special pride that defeat cannot wipe out. The athletes work their hardest and do their best, with the help of many fine coaches. With every win and every loss the athletes never gave up. "That's why we're Riley."

Cats 5-5 overall

The Wildcat football team rebounded from a winless 1978 campaign to complete the 1979 season 5-5 overall and 5-4 in the conference. Highlights of the '79 season included the Cats' 34-0 rout of LaSalle (to end a 13-game losing streak) and the team's 14-24 come-from-behind victory over Clay.

The Clay victory gave the team a three-game winning streak heading into the 1980 season. In addition to these two victories, the team's 7-0 defeat of Adams marked Riley's Homecoming victory.

Graduation will take its toll on Coach Clarke Dippell's 1980 squad with the loss of several key starters such as: co-captains John Bonk and Daryl Reid, Rick Howard, Danny Basker, and Randy Spitaels.

CROSS-COUNTRY makes it to semi-state

The 1979 cross country season can be described in two words: dedication and determination. To "Star's Stars," dedication meant getting up at 8 a.m. during summer vacation to make morning practices. It meant competing in marathons during the off season. Charles Strange, John Vandewalle, and Dave Stewart ran in the Pizza Hut marathon at Bloomington, Ind., last November, while Coach Larry Morningstar and Dan Saros chose the mini-marathon (6.2 miles).

Determination meant running their hardest over the longest courses in the shortest period of time. Six runners on the '79 squad set personal records on the Erskine course. Junior Chris Walker ran the lowest time at Erskine of all '79 Wildcat runners with a 13:04.5.

Co-captains for the team were Dan Saros and Chuck Strange. Most valuable runner was John Vandewalle. Junior Ann Allen once again broke the girls' school record with a time of 15:21 before she sustained a foot injury which sidelined her in the middle of the season.

Teamwork: the element behind success

The Wildcat six-pack volleyball team, under the direction of Coach Rebecca Stafford, finished with a 9-12 overall record and 4-5 conference. "There were outstanding players on this year's team," Mrs. Stafford stated, "They worked together as a whole."

The girls advanced to the second round of the Sectional held at Mishawaka by defeating New Prairie, 15-11, 15-4. One highlight of the season was the first Riley volleyball invitational. Six area teams participated in the event which was organized by Mrs. Stafford. Whether or not the invitational will become an annual affair depends on cooperation on the part of the other schools.

Graduation losses combined with inexperience plagued the team during the early stages of the season. Tri-captains for the 1979 team were seniors Joyce Alwine, Theresa Montgomery, and Diana Vargo.

Atmosphere before, during, and after a game.

Watching a sport from a fan's point of view is much like seeing the finished production of a play. The fan leaves the field unaware of the intense feelings experienced by the players before, during and after an event. This aspect of sport is the acute agony and ecstasy felt only by the participating athlete.

The atmosphere that fills the football locker room is deceptively calm as the players joke and talk with each other before a game. Underlying the calm exterior are powerful feelings of nervousness and excitement. During the game most of the players remain standing, as they yell and cheer to keep each other's confidence up.

After a loss, a deathly quiet pervades the locker room as the players look forward to an extra hard practice the next day. A win signals the rocking of the team bus, singing, and partying.

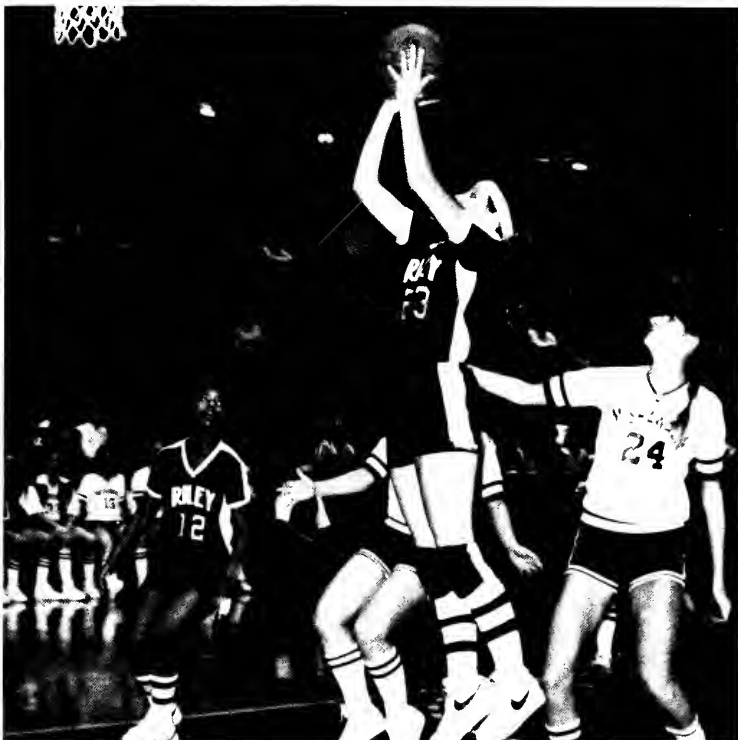

Another team sport where cooperation and teamwork plays a major part is basketball. The pre-game locker room attitude is much the same as in football. There is a tenseness as the players dress and psych themselves up for the impending game. The players cheer throughout the half, assuring themselves that they will catch up if they're behind. If they are ahead, they feel confident and excited. Again, if loss occurs, the team is quiet.

In most sports, a fan thinks of a team working together to win. In sports like wrestling and cross country, the team is important, but there is also the individual victory involved when a runner places well or when a wrestler pins his opponent. "I have to size up my opponent, stare at him, psych him out, and keep saying to myself, I can beat him, I can beat him . . .," (Marc Mersich, wrestling)

"We all feel the same way. We are a team that is together; we share both satisfaction and disappointment when 'we' as a team, win or lose." (Ann Allen, cross country)

The climax of the season came when the team defeated Clay in a 3-2 overtime battle in the consolation game of the South Bend Soccer Tournament. The team did not have a coach, but they did have three captains, —Tony Rosback, Tim Meilner, and Eric Frankson.

Young team displays unexpected power

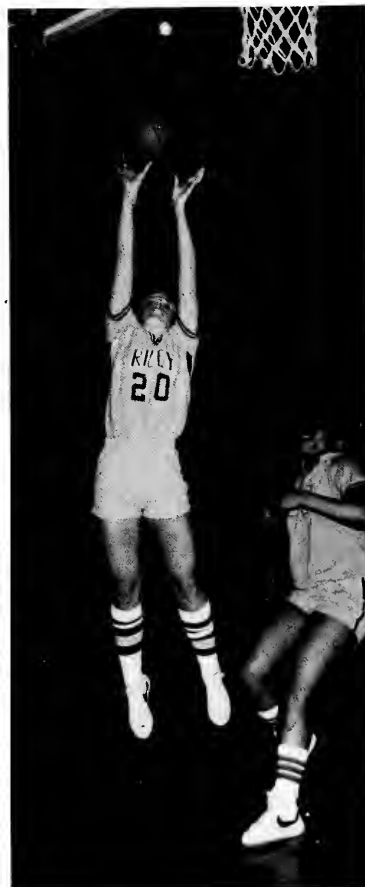

Despite the lose of nine seniors from the previous year, the girls' basketball team was able to carry on its tradition of having a winning season. The season ended with an over all record of 10 wins and 8 losses. One of the team's major accomplishments was being able to defeat every team in their sectional during regular season play with the exception of the sectional champions, LaSalle.

Team captain Audrey Shortz was the only senior on the team. Through cooperation, talent, and spirit, Audrey was able to lead the young team to unexpected power. The year turned out to be a successful one, rather than just a rebuilding one as expected.

Coach Coddens felt good about the year. "This year was one of my most enjoyable of all time. They just kept doing things they were not supposed to be able to do. It's a tribute to our girls and the tradition they have established."

The Cats ended their season on a high note by winning three of their last four games to close out their regular season record at 11-9. "We started to work as a team," commented third year head coach, Bob Berger in referring to his team's much improved play toward the end of the season. Co-captains for this year's squad were seniors Bob Jolliff and Eric Brazier. One highlight of the season was the team's first-place finish in the Plymouth Tournament. This is the second year in a row the Cats have captured the Plymouth crown. Another high point during the course of the season was the team's defeat of rival Adams, 86-64. Early in the season, the team suffered a heartbreaking loss to cross-town powerhouse LaSalle on a last second shot by the Lions' Doug Meyer, 64-65. Senior Eric Brazier led the team in scoring for the second straight year with a 17.5 average. Graduating seniors for this year's squad were Brazier, Jolliff, Kelly Scott, and Phil Wesley.

After running their record to 4-0, the wrestling team managed only one more victory in the final six meets to end their season with a 5-5 overall record and a 4-5 NIC mark. Co-captains for the team were seniors Dave Gassensmith and Mark Gendel.

The team as a whole suffered through a sporadic season with their best performance coming at the Mishawaka sectional where they placed third behind Penn and Mishawaka. Senior Dave Gassensmith was the only wrestler to win back to back sectional titles. Other wrestlers who placed in the sectional were Mark Gendel, Dan Saros, and Dan Basker; first place, while Dan Floran, Steve Warner, and Marc Mersich placed second. These seven wrestlers then advanced to the LaPorte Regional with Saros placing third. Warner, Basker, and Gassensmith placed fourth.

The wrestling season can be summed up in a statement from Coach Clarke, "Overall it was about what I expected. The wrestlers tried their best and little more could be expected of them."

Co-captain Laura Fahey finishes first in sectional

The girls' swim team had many close meets which made an exciting season. Senior Laura Fahey and sophomore Renee Flesh led the team to a third-place finish in the South Bend Sectional. Fahey was sectional champion in the 100-yard breast stroke, with a sectional record-breaking time of 1:11.79. Teammate Renee Flesh followed a close second. Laura Fahey captured fifth place in the state meet which was held at Ball State University. Co-captains of the team were Fahey and Karen Parpart, the only seniors on the squad. Coach Brenda Saunders said, "You know it's been a good season when yesterday seemed like the first day of practice." Coach Saunders will have thirty swimmers returning for next year's team. The highlight of the season was the first-time-ever victory over cross-town rival Adams. Laura Fahey expressed her feelings about the team and season by saying, "I was happy with the outcome of the season, even though we could have won some of the meets that were so close. Over all, though, the team was most enjoyable."

Boys capture second in state meet

The boys' swimming team captured an unexpected second place finish in the boys' state swimming meet at Ball State University. Junior Mark Appenzeller led the way with 29 points, capturing state title in the 500 freestyle, and was barely edged out by a Haworth opponent for the title in the 200 freestyle. Senior Jeff Niblick showed his swimming talent with his second place finish in the 100 freestyle and his fourth-place finish in the 100 backstroke. The freestyle relay team consisting of Appenzeller, Niblick, Todd Fairchild, and Rick White proved their strength by placing second in the 400 freestyle relay.

Overall, the team, led by their captain Dave Guin, finished 7-2 in the NIC. With memorable clashes against such teams as Bishop Noll and Adams, the swimmers fed their fans with thrills and excitement throughout the season.

TENNIS . . . a year of rebuilding and revising

The 1979 boys' tennis team faced the prospect of defending their 1978 sectional crown amid graduation losses and a new coach, Mr. Richard Hendricks. Hendricks was named head coach to replace Mr. Dave Dunlap, who resigned after the 1978 season.

The 1979 season was a disappointment to both the players and fans, with inexperience playing a large factor. Coach Hendricks, however, will lose only three letter-winners from this year's 5-11 squad: John Reed, Troy Bond, and Pete Thurin. The 1980 team will feature 16 returning lettermen, including sophomore Eddie Filer who went undefeated for the '79 season. "Look for Riley to be a strong conference and state championship contender next year," stated Hendricks.

ACADEMICS

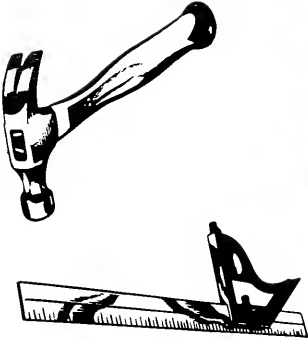

Academics are a major part of high school since everyone is required to take certain courses to graduate. Every year many different courses are offered from ceramics and cake decorating to earth science and calculus. Some students take college preparatory courses such as advanced placement and honors classes, while others become familiar with the business world. Jobs are offered as courses for students who learn the basics of working in the outside world. Outside activities were also a part of the academic program in some classes. Speech and debate classes went to contests, while yearbook and newspaper staffers went to seminars. In classrooms other educational activities took place. U. S. History and government classes held mock legislatures and trials. In home economics, the Family Relations class had a mock wedding, while Child Development had Christmas parties for little children.

Academics and academic activities are important. "That's why we're Riley."

Industrial Arts . . . That's their style

Reading, writing, and arithmetic aren't the only things students learned during the year. They got a chance to express and interpret their talents in the various "shop" classes. The classes were important because they gave the students experience in fields they might pursue after graduating. As the years progressed, the "traditionally" male classes have had an increase in female enrollment. The different classes students can take advantage of include drafting, woods, machine processing, electronics, auto repair, powder puff mechanics, and graphic arts.

Can education be fun?

Learning was made fun in various ways. The home economics classes planned parties for little children. Right before Christmas break they held a party with cakes, candies and Santa Claus for the children. Still other home ec. classes planned and cooked meals and made various articles of clothing.

The family relations classes this year organized a "mock wedding" which had everything from a matrimonial kiss to the throwing of the bride's flowers.

In the art classes the students learned to draw a model object and expressed their creativity by concocting a picture from their imagination.

The physical education program had much to offer. Many students had a chance to take senior life-saving courses or go to Chippewa Bowling Lanes to practice their skills in bowling. The gym classes also had ping-pong, tennis, basketball, volleyball, soccer and many more activities to exercise the students.

Decisions, decisions; everyone must make them, but for college bound students some have to be made now. The courses most students will take to prepare themselves for college are: English, science, math, and sometimes a foreign language. The required courses, government and U.S. history provide a background for students majoring in these areas.

Some students take accelerated classes in which the work they are doing is already at college level. Whether it is writing papers, dissecting worms, cutting open fetal pigs or solving problems in trigonometry, all the work is done to achieve the ultimate goal, the goal of reaching the challenge of college.

Most seek business careers

"75-80 percent of students enrolled in business courses choose business as their career," said Mrs. Mary VanDeGenahte, business department head. Business classes can be beneficial, however, even for students who are not planning on majoring in business. In one course, accounting, students learn how to budget corporate money. In clerical record-keeping, they learn how to manage their own money. They learn to file and use electronic calculating machines in Office Training I. In Office Training II, students are taught to use a dictation machine. They are also given medical and legal office training plus many other office techniques.

Other courses offered are shorthand, business communications, and introduction to business. Another course offering which is essential to almost any line of work is typing.

To help expand their business knowledge, the classes had various speakers come to talk to them and they also took some field trips.

PVE GIVES the chance to students such as Jeff Whitmer to receive special aid on a one-to-one basis.

"Success in the world of work." This is the goal of the forty-seven students enrolled in the Pre-employment Vocational Experience program. The PVE program is a co-op work-study program designed to help its students gain a knowledge of how to survive in a world of work.

The three teachers, Mr. George Orfanos, Mrs. Cynthia Morgan, and Mrs. Lillian Moss, help hunt for jobs for the students. Mrs. Moss commented, "Once we get a student into a job, if he does well, it often opens up jobs for other students."

The students have a wide variety of jobs. Some work at McDonald's and other fast food restaurants, while others work in the school cafeteria. Still other students' jobs include places such as Craft's Tire, Cap Inc., various body shops, Dick and Company, Copco Steel, Custom Tooling, A.R.E. Services, and various retail stores.

Behavior is stressed in the PVE program. The teachers feel that most problems stem from poor behavior; therefore behavior evaluations are made up by all employers each week.

The students are given responsibilities in class that they will have on their jobs. One of the things they are required to do is to punch in and out on a time-clock in the classroom.

The students are also taught to realize the value of money, by saving at least 25 percent of each paycheck in a special account. The students are required to leave their bank-books in the class room until they graduate. The PVE students this year earned $3,5000, out of which they saved approximately $1,300.

Since the course is a work-study program, students are not permitted to graduate unless they are holding a job at the time of graduation.

MR. GEORGE ORFANOS talks with his PVE class about homework assignments and the future.

DE (Distributive Education), COE (Cooperative Education), and ICT (Industrial Education) all offered on-the-job experience. Students attended school for the first three or four hours and then they went to work.

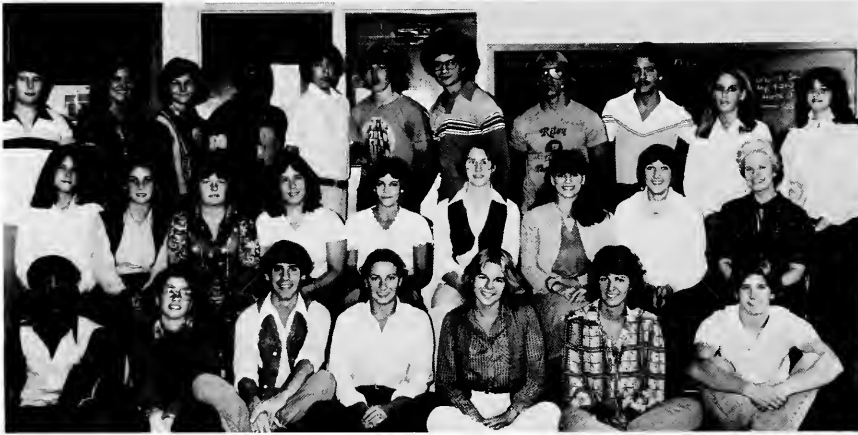

DE teacher Mr. James Fenters sponsored 79 students in sales, management, and marketing, most at the retail level.

COE, headed by Mrs. Bernice DeVries, offered the chance to work in business offices as file clerks, typists, bookkeepers, secretaries, and stenographers. Eight COE students won awards at a regional contest at Warsaw High school Feb. 16. Sandy LaFree won a first in Typing I and also in Legal Occupations; Laura Fahey, first in Communication Specialist; Sue Anderson, second in Shorthand II; Glen Ritchey, second in Bank Teller; Megan Bradley, third in General Clerical I and fifth in Job Interview II; Shelby Kane, third in Typing II; Craig Slater, fourth in Accounting II; and Marlene Poole, sixth in Receptionist. Some of the companies that employ COE students pay for all or part of the students' education at IUSB. Many remain on the job full-time after graduation.

ICT, headed by Mr. Robert Mammolenti, offered jobs in the trade, health, and industrial fields. Auto mechanic, jeweler's assistant, nurses' aide, and carpenter are just a few of the careers covered by ICT. Since not everyone in ICT has the same career objective, the things covered in class pertain to people in all walks of life. Mr. Mammolenti teaches practical aspects of adult life such as banking, getting credit, filling out tax forms, and investing money. With the help of several new people, the Hoosier Poet staff set out to present their theme "That's why we're Riley" through photos and in-depth features. The staff worked every sixth hour and often spent their evenings and weekends planning layouts and writing copy and cutlines in order to meet their deadlines.

The staff was headed by Editor-in-chief Loretta Stone. She and four section editors had attended a journalism workshop at Ball State University during the summer. There they learned new yearbook trends, basic layout and design, and techniques of writing copy.

It was not all work for the staff however. They had their annual Christmas-Hanukkah party and spring banquet. For something new, to break the monotony of class, birthday parties were planned for almost everyone on the staff.

The hard work of the staff was rewarded when the last pages of the 1980 Hoosier Poet were sent to the printers.

Riley Review editors outdo themselves

The 1979-80 Riley Review staff can only be described as innovative, energy-filled and dedicated. Having sent eight editors to journalism workshops—five to Indiana University in Bloomington, and three to Ball State University—the staff began its year with fresh, new ideas. The stories were timely; as Congress defeated the draft bill, that very issue of the Riley Review contained an entire spread on the armed services and the draft. The staff was also the first in South Bend to invite Dr. James P. Scamman, new superintendent of the South Bend Community School Corporation, for lunch and a press conference. The staff tried to stay ahead of everything by printing the news that was happening at the time, and the news that would happen in the future, and not so much about past events. The staff wrote not for their own self-esteem, but for something much better—ALL of the people of Riley.

"We went out on a limb to change the style of the Riley Review because it should be a learning experience for everyone."

PEOPLE

People: the students and faculty who work together to build a united school. The teachers and counselors help students to have a happy fulfilling year. The seniors lead the underclassmen and set examples for them. The juniors are the in-between people, working hard to get to the top, while the sophomores are the under underclassmen striving to be noticed. All the students, no matter what grade, contribute to the welfare and activities of the school. The people are the school, in sports, drama, journalism, classes, and everything else we do. "That is why we're Riley."

The last year we lived it up and had lots to do!

"The most glorious thing that happened to me in my senior year was being elected as one of the homecoming queens."

Marlene Poole

Whether it was a party every weekend, spirit week, the treacherous hours on homework, play tryouts, competing in sports, teasing student teachers, or just enjoying school itself, there is always something special a senior will remember.

Some will recall getting out of first-day finals for two years in a row due to bad weather and hoping they could get lucky another year. Others will remember how relieved they were over the new policy requiring that seniors have only 32 credits to graduate.

Still others looked forward to Cap and Gown day. Some look back to when they were sophomores and were embarrassed by the seniors. As juniors, they looked forward to the day when that seniority would come their way. Then there would be the memories of the annual senior prom. Even though they would experience their last prom, they would always remember the fun involved.

Seniors soon realized it wasn't so hard to reach the top after all. They had always wondered what it was like to be a senior—the envy of all.

Now they know.

The end of the 70's and the beginning of the 80's ushered in a new set of problems to face. With a new superintendent and a change of principals mid-year, the class officers had their work cut out for them.

Dave Cassensmith, junior class vice-president, took the reins of the presidency as a senior, with Mary Birmingham as his vice-president. They helped the school and Mr. Early to adjust to each other, as well as being instrumental in many of the policy changes, initiated by the change. Besides their regular responsibilities of organizing the Prom and Homecoming, the class officers supported the school in its many sporting events.

'Senioritis' struck again but we survived

"The senior class have finally showed their leadership in their last year and brought unity at Riley."

—Debbie Abrams

Senioritis? What is it, really? Only seniors know and understand it because every senior gets it eventually.

The symptoms begin with the senior wanting to get out of school as early as possible. Second, he stays up until 2 o'clock in the morning completing last-minute term papers. Third, he thinks there is no need to always attend class so the day is spent up at Tower Hill.

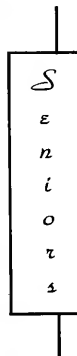

Fourth, Mom and Dad loan the car and let you stay out late—But, all night?

Seniors next complain about teachers and too much homework assignments. Talk of commencement fills the halls.

There are many more symptoms a senior may experience. He should not be pitied though. Actually he is enjoying himself. That is what senioritis really is.

Class

we did it best

Seniors—we do it best! That is the reaction of all seniors. There are many advantages of being a senior.

DeAnn Paszli believes, "It gives you more school spirit."

Marcy Trost thinks it means, "You're the oldest and everyone else looks up to you."

"A senior is a kid who has spent years in school getting ready for the future," says Ben Koch.

Meg Bradley says, "You can do everything to the underclassmen that happened to you when you were underclassmen."

"The advantage of being a senior is having people take you seriously, states Carol Morgan.

To Karen Ullery, "A senior is a person who has finally made it through thirteen years of school—and survived."

Cheryl McKee summed up the feelings by saying, "We've come a long way."

A senior is a person with that special something, one who has actually been there. He's a friend to be trusted in.

A senior will remember the good and bad times spent, but it will always be remembered that the class of 1980—did it best!

A career in acting at an early age

"I was in one of those 'mail-before-midnight' commercials," Larry said, "but it was something."

To most students, writing scripts, directing movies, and acting are only for professionals. But to senior Larry Karaszewski, it is part of life.

Larry bought a super-8 movie camera and started making his own movies when he was 8 years old. And he started his acting career like many other aspiring actors—he did a television commercial.

For four years, Larry has been writing, directing, and acting on the award-winning Beyond Our Control, (BOC) Junior Achievement television show. His acting roles included playing Richard Dreyfuss in the BOC movie, "The Jaws of Fury."

Larry has also been very active in Riley drama. Productions he has participated in include Godspell and Guys and Dolls.

DIRECTING THE show, Larry sits in the operating booth monitoring the actors.

OPERATING THE camera at WNDU 16 Studio, Larry tapes a version of BOC.

“We’re the class of 81!”

For the third consecutive year as president, Chris Walker led the class of 81'. Working with Chris were Secretary, Marilyn Brehmer; Sergeant-at-Arms, Tim Gavin; Vice-president, Ann Allen; Treasurer, John Wertz; and Social Chairman, Diane Ritchey.

The class officers organized many profit-making activities. These included a junior dance, candy sales, and class pin sales.

The money earned was put toward the prom preparations. The officers also inspired school spirit and tried to make the juniors proud to say, "We're the class of 81!" Chris Walker summed up the year by saying, "We wanted to raise money, but our main goal was to get everyone interested and involved in school activities, and to just have a lot of fun."

Juniors enhance athletic teams

LAURA GONDERMAN finds a place to break through and runs for a touchdown.

The juniors were great contributors to sports during the year. They were dedicated, worked hard and gave their best. In football Sam Henderson, Jay Boocher and Tim Gavin were key players. Eight junior swimmers helped end the girl's swimming season with a winning record. The girls varsity volleyball team also had many juniors who were important. They were Sue Aitchison, Lynn Tepe, Lori Jackowiak and Anne Wilson. In cross country Jon Vandewalle was most valuable runner and Ann Allen beat her last year's time to set a new school record. Sue Wills and Ruth O'Brien were important to the girls' basketball team. Mark Appenzeller with his high caliber swimming ability went to the state meet again. These students, along with others, represented the class of 81' in sports exceptionally well.

Early morning madness

Students grew familiar with the wee hours of the morning to finish English books, term papers, and projects. The non-sleepers fell into three categories, the three P's: the Procrastinators, the Pressured, and the Partiers. The Procrastinators would review and report on 15 articles from the American History Illustrated magazine that Mr. Brenneman had assigned two weeks ago, the night before they were due. Then they would finish them on the bus on the way to school, get to class five seconds before the bell and hand them in. Then half way through class they would fall asleep, just to get behind on the next assignment.

The Pressured spent just as much time up at night as the Procrastinator, but instead of worrying about getting it done they worried about whether their second copy was neat enough. The Partiers could be either Procrastinators or Pressured students, but when they boogied, you knew it. Whether they worked hard to finish it early, or just barely got it done, they always left some time to do what they liked best, Party!!

THE STEPS seem to be a good place for Natalie Paulson to finish some last minute homework.

Class of '81 makes its mark

The class of 1981 dealt with many new experiences, opportunities and changes. The juniors gained a new sense of seniority with a chance of going to the prom and not being the low people on the totem pole. The class of '81 accomplished many things during the year. They expressed their talents in drama and music. Arturo Garcia and Matt Wilson held important roles in the play "By Jupiter!" Janet Shafer led the Riley marching band during half-time at the football games. The academically-inclined students worked hard to keep good grades and hoped to get accepted in to the National Honor Society. Some of the juniors thought about college and narrowed down their choices of schools they wished to attend.

Do it after school

GUARDIAN ANGEL Julie Toth performs her magic.

The juniors' day didn't end as soon as they got out of school. Some students stayed after school for practice in one of the many sports students could participate in. They put in two or three hours a night and went home to find a pile of books waiting to be studied. Managers, mat maids and swim team timers were at school extra hours to help in setting up and officiating. Guardian Angels also performed their magic on the athletes' lockers during after-school hours.

The juniors' after-school hours weren't all spent at school. Many students went home for a couple of minutes to get ready for work. They worked at Scottsdale Mall or various other places. Some students went to parks and played tennis, frisbee or basketball and others tried their skills at the new popular sport of racquetball. Still other juniors cruised in their cars, walked their dogs, watched TV or just sat down and read a good book. Whatever the juniors did, there were as many different things to do as there were juniors.

Sophs deliver South Bend Tribune

SHELLY KURZ enjoys a nice walk while delivering her papers.

MARK WATERS looks like he's prepared and ready to go.

Spare time—no one seems to have any, and sophomores are no exceptions. Between school and doing homework, two sophomores, Shelly Kurz and Mark Waters, have found time to pick up a little extra cash by delivering the South Bend Tribune. Shelly has had her route for two years, but for two years before that she helped her brother, who had the route first. She took over the route because she wanted to get out and meet people and she needed the money. Mark has been delivering papers for two years because "I wanted to make money and it doesn't take much time." With less than an hour taken out of each day, Shelly and Mark have found a useful way to make quick cash and they have also found how their job "sheds more light."

explains a problem to Sue Elek.

The sophomores helped lead Wildcat teams to victory, and many participated in several sports. Bob Bonk, Steve Reygaert, and Steve Olson played on the varsity football team. Dave Stewart ran cross country, while Phil Parelus was on the swim team. Renee Flesh went to the state meet in girls' swimming and swam the 100 meter breast stroke. Stacey Schmiel was a diver for Riley.

Sophomores participated in a variety of other activities also. They cheered for teams and players at games and pep assemblies. They learned their way around Riley, and they made a name for themselves. They contributed to Riley individually and as a whole. That's why they're Riley.

For the class of '82 ... this year was one of great experiences. They got involved in everything. Some displayed their talent in musical areas. Lisa Schurr, Cheri Goss, Andrea Bocher, and Alan Gottschalk performed in the November production of "By Jupiter." Amy Hoevel led the marching band as a drum major. Scott Dunham wrote for the Riley Review. Ben Feferman and Jeff Miller ran anywhere with their cameras to help the publications staffs.

Being a Sophomore has its advantages and its disadvantages. Despite being on the "bottom of the totem pole," sophomores work their way up to finally reach the summit of seniority. At the football games the sophomores yell just as loud! ONE STEP! Most students that receive their driver's licenses are sophomores. TWO STEPS! Within a month sophomores order their class rings, one of the first signs of progress. THREE STEPS!

New principal takes helm at midyear

The Riley faculty is an interesting group of people both in school and out. In school, the teachers use different techniques to help students enjoy learning. Mr. Brenneman and Mr. Taylor, for instance, used role playing in their classes to keep students interested. Mr. Hoyer taught his students to remember things using HAM (the Hoyer Association Method). The math department always claimed to be terrific, and they were proved correct this year as published test scores showed Riley to be leading all other South Bend high schools in math.

The faculty got involved in many things this year. Mrs. Linda Bagwell agreed to sponsor the first pom pon squad. Mr. Michael Downey helped start a literary magazine, Paw Prints.

AN ABRUPT CHANGE in administration on the day before Christmas vacation brought Mr. James Early as Riley principal, replacing Mr. Warren Seaborg. Mr. Early (right) had been principal for ten years of the former Jackson High School.

They're friends, nameless but not unknown

What goes on behind the closed doors of Riley before 8 a.m. and after 3 p.m.? Custodians go around with brooms and dust rags, cleaning and polishing the school from top to bottom. Not many people know them or even notice them, but they are there all the time, trying to make the school look its best.

The other people helping in our school are the cooks. These women come in each day to prepare lunches, cooking dishes like pizza, ravioli, spaghetti, hamburgers, and French fries. They make special dishes for special holidays, such as turkey on Christmas and Thanksgiving. The price of the plate lunch is 50 cents first semester, but in January it went up to 60 cents. We also have an A-la-carte line which sells cookies for 8 cents, hot sams for 20 cents and nuts for 20 cents. We get a large variety of food for lunch—three main choices and three side dishes.

Cars not the only way to get there

Transportation—the way to get from here to there—is found in many forms at Riley. Some students drive their own cars, complete with the special accessories and touch-ups that make each car unique. Students who live near each other may carpool to save gas. A few motorcycles can also be seen in the parking lot, and Spanish teacher Dennis Kielton frequently rides his moped to school.

Students not old enough to drive ride the buses. Those who walk to school get exercise while enjoying the nice weather in spring and fall and snow in the winter. When school is not the only place a student wants to go, the Transpo bus service comes in handy for a day at the mall or downtown.

A LITTLE before 3 o'clock the Riley buses line up to take students home.

VICKIE HORVATH, Julie Horvath, and Collyne McKenna ride their bikes more often because of the high price of gas.

WALKING to and from school is an enjoyable exercise for Jenny Rarick.

THE CO-OPERATIVE OFFICE Education program uses transportation as its theme on a bulletin board display.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertising is in evidence everyday to sell goods and services. In ancient times advertising was done by barkers and criers. Shopkeepers and importers hired persons with pleasing voices to walk through the streets of a town and shout or sing sales messages. The radio and television announcers are a modern version of the old-time crier. Today many forms of advertising are used—television commercials, magazines, and newspapers. In the next few pages is our form of advertising. The patrons who support us are businesses in the Riley district where we work, play, and enjoy our lives. These businesses and the people who run them make us proud to say, "That's Why We're Riley."

Hoosier poet staff salutes advisor Mrs. Lois Claus

A student hears all the time about how hard the yearbook staff works to publish a quality product. It's true that we work hard but there is someone in the background that we as the staff would like to, for once in her career, bring into the limelight. That person is our advisor Mrs. Lois Claus.

The term advisor is deceptive, for Mrs. Claus does much more than advise. On her shoulders rests the burden of managing the Publications finances which with the paper and the yearbook totals over 15,000 dollars.

Her's is the task of bringing together a group of very different, enthusiastic individuals for one year and have them work together and cooperate with each other to bring out the best publications possible.

It seems that at every turn someone was calling her name with a question. She always seemed ready with a smile and a vote of confidence for us when things looked bad. The staff of the yearbook extends its thanks and the thanks of all the other staffs in the past 25 years, to Mrs. Claus for the privilege and the pleasure of working with her.

Mrs. Claus is a gracious lady. I have known her for 15 years and have yet to hear her say a disparaging word about anyone.

—R. Smith—

Recognizable yet unrecognized

Appreciation is shown as the crowd stands and cheers appreciation for the outstanding athletes, the dramatic play actors and the well organized faculty. But what about the people behind all this talent, the ones that get those people ready for their recognition? They are often left out when the applause is given. The people being referred to include the sports helpers, the matmaids, the batgirls, and the swim team timers; the theatrical production stage crew; the light director, the prop builders, and the costume and makeup assistants, and the office helpers, the attendance aides and the switchboard operators, the guardian angels and devils should be also recognized. They not only spend time and money on the athletes but provide necessary support to increase team spirit.

The athletes would be in much chaos without the assistance of the volunteer helpers. The wrestling team is greatly dependent on the matmaids to have the gym ready for the meet, to keep the scores during each meet and to keep the individual wrestling records accurate. The batgirls perform the same jobs for the baseball team. They are responsible for the equipment used and all records kept during the game. All of these groups of students deserve their just recognition.

OFFICE AIDE Chris Zilkowski prepares the attendance records.

MATMAIDS Laura Reed and Lisa Baumhower keep score during a wrestling match.

It's never dull. If there's action, it's in the attendance office.

Growing with . . .

January 1980 breezed by before February had its chance. Snow finally came with cold weather. With temperatures about 8 or 9 degrees, skiing, inner-tubing, and tobogganing got underway. Around this time of year students became anxious for spring break as the talk of Florida's beaches became dominant. The vacation became longer as the school corporation extended spring break five days. Integration was the big issue as all the employees of the school corporation attended seminars. Spirit week broke loose as each class competed for the best decorated floor. Committees were set up, money collected and the work was under way. The fall proved to be a rewarding time for everyone when the football team became victorious after a 0-13 losing streak last year. Winter sports came to a close and spring sports began their hard strenuous workouts to build teams that had winning qualities.

JEFF MILLER captures the sun in the clouds at a beautiful moment.

A changing world

Weekends were never boring but were sometimes expensive as movies were on the increase, along with the price. Many students would pay $3.50 to see a tear-jerker like "Kramer vs. Kramer." There were always long lines for "Rocky Horror Picture Show" which cost $4 a person, and the only showing was at midnight. But then who would miss having rice and water thrown all over them. Along with the cost of movie tickets, the cost of gasoline rose considerably. At the end of February a gallon of lead-free gas was $1.20.

There was always something to do, even if it meant playing cards until two o'clock in the morning. Parties never lost their zip since one was held just about every weekend. Another form of entertainment was a play. The spring production of "Gaslight Girl" brought the audience to their feet on March 14, 15, 16. Many hours of darkroom work and drawing paid off when the art department took 31 gold keys in the Scholastic Art Contest. The boys' swim team took second in the state meet with only five swimmers qualifying, and the band placed high in the state competition. Students spent hours to improve skating abilities or rode dirt bikes to have some challenge. Adjustments had to be made by everyone with new administrators, a new principal and a few new teachers. The students coped with the changes and proved that they could be intelligent adults and handle problems. The Winter Olympics went on in Lake Placid, New York, and Eric Heiden won five gold medals. In the news around the world women were considered for the draft, and the U.S. planned to boycott the summer Olympics in Moscow. With the events around us, we grew and learned. With an education being taught by a superb faculty and athletic opportunities galore, each student got involved and that is one more reason why we're RILEY.

"This year has meant growing in our convictions, making the best of what little we have. It has meant being thankful for our friends and becoming capable of handling our friends' problems. It has meant LOVE."

Acknowledgements

Putting out a yearbook is a tedious task and for our yearbook staff the task seemed to take ages. Complications arose every time we turned around. Without the help of a lot of people the book would not have been possible. Mr. Derald Ailes, our representative from Newsfoto, helped us whenever we were in a bind. DeGroff's studio provided their darkroom for our use and printed up pictures with only a few hours' notice. All the photographers were very patient and took great pictures. They spent much of their time in the darkroom or out taking pictures. A super advisor, Mrs. Claus, kept us going since we were all procrastinators. The work done was tremendous especially the long hours spent after school by Lori Werntz, Tracey Birch, and Kay Vanderwall who were always patient and willing to help. Many days of hard work were spent by Mark Stuck who worked hard and often alone on the advertising section. The patrons who contributed are greatly appreciated. The yearbook is an accomplishment which we are very proud of and hope that it preserves your memories.

Colophon

James Whitcomb Riley High School's 1980 Hoosier Poet was printed by Newsfoto Yearbook Company, Box 1392, San Angelo, Texas 76902. The 176-page book was produced by the yearbook staff. The paper used is enamel, 80 stock. Gold vivar text endsheets were used. The cover is navy blue with a gold foil stamp, and it has a stone grain. Division pages have 1-pt. and 2-pt. tool lines along with the special "R." Copy on each division page is reflective of the theme "That's Why We're Riley," and how it relates to the section's events. The basic type used was Caledonia. The opening section is 14 pt. while the rest of the copy is 10 pt. Captions are Caledonia 9 pt. solid. The quotes are in various types. The headlines are in Melior Style number 61. The spring supplement was designed by the staff and printed locally.

The Last Year

When you walk out the door
It's hard to say goodbye
To good ole Riley High.
In this last year you have found friendships that will never end.
A part of your life is here and special times for every year.
All of these seem to fade to the past.
But in your memories
They will always last.
